

Emerging Solutions Technology and Business Views for the Ubiquitous Communication

Dr Heikki Huomo, Innovision Group, UK

The presentation will cover a short historical overview of the ubiquitous communication research Dr Huomo was leading while at Nokia. This research program led to the development of the short range radio technology which is now known as Wibree and touch based service discovery technology now known as NFC. The current key use cases of the NFC and its future development directions will be covered.